Presidential Debate Question on Energy Policy Answered by Rowdy House

STATELINE, Nev., Oct. 22, 2012 /PRNewswire/ — Every American's interest peaked during the second presidential debate when one questioner asked about rising assoline prices." Your his department to help lower gas prices. De you agree with Secretary Oh that this is not the job of the Energy Department? Many argue that neither presidential candidate adequately answered the question.

answered the question. The aptly timed song "Energy Policy" answers the town hall debate question. It highlights the fact that current policy does not prioritize energy affordability and as a result, today's feel prices negatively impact that about everyons. The Richrich House Missis: release "Energy impacted by foreign policy", the subject of the third presidential debate on October 22. "Energy Policy" is playing on stations nationwide.

America's energy policy has been "practicality challenged" by China's pursuit of oil which is undecruting U.S. security interests and economic future on multiple tronts. China needs of onengy because Americans by us onany products from them. Tharts also why China is the largest toreign holder of US debt, its oil consumption grows seven times faster than the U.S., and its growth projections are off the charts.

Sustaining an extremely high level of economic growth may be necessary to contain civil urners in China, even through they continue to suppress disserting opinions and human form while high passion prices have Americans transitioning from cars to bicycles, the Chinese are transitioning from bicycles to cars. In a few decades, China will have more cars on its roads than there are cars on the planet today. Therefore, they want more oil.

While Americans are questioning US Energy Policy in the 2012 Presidential Election Debates, and asking if their government is doing anything to help lower gas prices. China has been working disjently to secure its energy future. They have been aggressed in the South China Sea which is rich in oil and gas, but their ownership is disputed. In addition, China has also been assertive in securing reserves around the world.

China has been securing oil reserves in the American mariet proximity, which will force the U.S. to seek more oil from the Middle East. China's arms sales to the region and its support of state sponsors of thereons are a highly foulting. With radical islamic ideologies gaining a controlling footbod and anti-American violence threatening American presence in the Middle Back the pice of oil with be going up, and the 2012 Presidential Eaction Debette with the meating Up.

Will the nerely Policy question be answered in the context of the broader Presidential Foreign Policy Debate? Adding an extra dimension on the Saturday before the final debate on foreign policy, the Obama administration commanded a US carrier group on a mission to cruise though the disputed South Chinal Sea. Tensions may faire. With the final Florida debate between Barack Obama and Mitt Romney including hot topics like Iran, Syna and the Libya scandal, there may not be enough their ob answer the Enerty Policy question. But the question on everyone's mind each time they fill up their tank is, "Will I be able to afford it next time?"

Rowdy House released the rock single "Don't Let a Liar Lead You" and the controversial YouTube video just before the new song Energy Policy and the presidential debates.
